

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

(By Wilfrid Eggleston)
A Weekly Review of National Affairs

Ottawa, August 5th.—In a modest, experimental way, the Canadian government is attempting to cope with the tragic problem of unemployed youth.

Many observers think this is the most deplorable aftermath of the depression. No less than 200,000 young people came to the age of responsibility during the depression era without finding steady work. They left school ambitions to find an interesting important part in the world of activity, and found nothing. Many of them married without ever having had a week's employment, and went on city or other municipality relief.

Though the improvement in business in the past two or three years has absorbed a fair percentage of these young people, there are still large numbers left. Some of them only need the offer of a job to get back on their feet. Others have been "soured" and slackened through years of enforced idleness, and need a course of training and general re-education.

Last session the Dominion Government voted a million dollars as a start toward meeting this problem. Hand thus were placed by the Treasury board when this item was originally considered. The Youth Employment Committee originally wanted seven million dollars spent on creating Canada's young people to self-respect and steady employment. Their estimates were returned and pared down to four million. The Minister of Labor, urged to exercise economy, it said to have brought this down to two million, five hundred thousand dollars. The Treasury board, which has now finally say, topped it down to a million dollars.

Who is Responsible?
It is an arguable point whether the state should take over the full responsibility for the problem. Many people argue that the industry way is best; stimulate private industry by wise fiscal policy, and it will find openings for the young people, they say. There is, however, a good example cited at hand for state assistance. The Roosevelt administration in the United States has poured out millions on this work.

Last year the estimated expenditure was $671,250,000 on the U. S. This was all devoted to the youth service of unemployment, either through the C. C. or the National Youth Administration. In contrast our million dollars looks trifling. On a per capita basis Canada would have to spend $50,000,000, or more a year to put on an equivalent show.

However, the million dollars being put up by the Dominion Government is to be supplemented by another million dollars from the provincial governments. If the latter were better off, the federal government might be disposed to release the figure. Unfortunately, three or four of them are still only a jump from insolvency.

Agreements have already been drawn up with the four western provinces, whereby their share of the million dollars will be spent. In the United States actual state employment for long periods has been given, as well as training of various sorts.

Used For Training
In Canada it is recognized that the modest sum will not permit of much more than a few weeks of training and apprenticeship, if the money is to be used around where it is most needed. Forestry work, the agricultural training of youth in the "dried-out" areas, the training of domestic servants, mining and prospecting, and what are called "industrial betterment" projects are in the program. The Youth Employment Committee has been retained as a sub-committee of the National Employment Commission, directed by Mr. J. H. Macdonald, to provide a balanced budget next year it is quite likely that the sum to be spent on the rescue and rehabilitation of the "lost generation" of Canadian youth will be stepped up sharply next year. In the United States the Civilian Conservation Corps has numbered as many as 250,000 young men, and the National Youth Administration is giving training and employment to tens of thousands more. Courses have been given in such lines as concrete construction, agriculture, automobile repairing, automobile electricity, cooking, masonry, radio servicing, photography and surveying.

ALPHA FACING THE FUTURE
Most grain producers of Alberta are facing adversity from a series of abnormally dry seasons. The majority of them are carrying on as best as they can, hopeful of better seasons in years to come.

The Alberta Wheat Pool is facing grim days ahead. By side with agricultural, even in these dark days should always remember that the cooperative system, open to all and democratically controlled, creates vested interests, constitutes a bulwark against profiteering and satisfies the demand for increased efficiency.

These self-evident truths behoove Alberta grain producers, it behooves all to support Alberta Pool Elevators.

PASSING OF PIONEER STRATHMORE CITIZEN

The death of Mr E. W. H. Lambert at his Calgary home occurred on July 31st, burial being at Strathmore on Wednesday afternoon, August 4th.

Coming to Strathmore from the Isle of Man in 1905, Mr Lambert, due to his training and experience, was soon called upon to take a prominent and active part in the upbuilding of the community. A Pharmaceutical Chemist by profession, and the holder of a Dispenser's Certificate from Apolonia, Greece (London, England), he opened the first drug store in the town (which in 1927, his son Arthur continuing the business).

During his active career in Strathmore, Mr Lambert became a Town Councillor, upon incorporation as a Town, in 1911, holding that office for ten years, during which time the side walks and firewalls were built, and Lambert Park (later named after him) was developed in collaboration with Canadian Pacific Railway. In 1909 it was appointed a Justice of the Peace.

SOCIAL CREDIT LEGISLATION
Wednesday's Session gave first reading to a bill introduced by Provincial Treasurer Hon. John E. Loe, an act for the nomination of the credit of the Province.

"The renunciation of the sales tax on the purchase of anything, under pressure from finance, this government must impose. Nevertheless those instructed in the technique of finance dynamics will immediately recognize signs of its insurrection. In its simpler aspect, of course, tax remission represents the first step necessary to the issue of a dividend; in fact, the issue of a dividend; for a tax is a dividend in reverse. That is why it must be foolish to be using money as dividends only to pull it in by a gradually and universally applied tax, such as the sales tax."

Premier William Abernethy said the bill declared that:

"The government's legislation will in no way rob the banks of anything whatever, nor can it possibly interfere with the way in which they order their business. So there is not and will not be any excuse whatever for any anxiety on the part of anyone in this respect."

CITIZENS TRIBUTE TO MR LAMBERT
Mr Lambert's unwavering regard for Justice and Fairplay was stressed by Mr. W. H. H. Kingdon who served as Justice of the Peace with Mr Lambert for a number of years. Never swerving from the course he thought right, he was a man of some times momentous loss in business.

PETTY THIEVES AGAIN MARAUD STRATHMORE
Strathmore was again visited by these undesirable Thursday night thieves. This time T. E. Wright's store and the value of over $100 and cash in the till, amounting to $112. The work is thought to be that of amateurs. This sort of crime is growing to be too much of a racket and strong measures should be taken to combat it.

TWEEDSMITH REACHES AKLAVIK
Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, late Sunday night reached the western Arctic capital, Aklavik, ending the river voyage stage of his northern adventure by establishing an all time speed record from Waterways.

From Aklavik his Excellency went to Herschel Island in the Hecla Strait by airplane. His return trip to Edmonton, approximately 1000 miles south of Herschel will have to be made by air and will be the longest flight ever made by a Canadian governor general. He is expected to return to Aklavik on the Alberta capital on August 12th.

Before he went ashore the governor general and other passengers on the S. S. Hibernia posted letters at what is believed to be the first ship's post office in the history of Canada.

The post office established a double precedent when Col. R. Reid of the Hudson's Bay Company, director of transport for the Mackenzie River Division was appointed postmaster. The first such post has been held in his life.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science Churches next Sunday, the subject of the Lesson Sermon will be "Spirit." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD, Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you" (Acts 17:22,23). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows: (page 181): "Material sense never helps mortals to understand. Spirit, God, through spiritual sense only, man comprehends and loves fully."

NEW COMET IS STUDIED BY U. S. ASTRONOMERS

Chicago, August 3rd.—Telegrams all over the United States were teeming Monday on a streaking bit of glowing light near the Pole Star as Finster's Comet—discovered a month ago—whirled through its third night of visibility.

But the celestial show was not for the savants alone. With the naked eye Prof. George A. Van Biesbroeck, of Yerkes Observatory said, the amateur astronomer may see the comet as "a medium-sized star" twinkling through space.

Amateurs with ordinary opera glasses can see the comet in full glory—tail and all. Although the talk Prof. Van Biesbroeck said, is smaller than that of other well known comets like Haley's, Encke's and Hyatt's the choicest magnifiers will show the sparkling particles thrust out from the main body of flaming matter by pressure generated by the sun.

The comet, discovered last month by Dr. P. Finster of Zurich, Switzerland, will reach its maximum brightness August 12 and be 90,000,000 miles from the earth. That night it will be just below the handle of the big dipper.

SIMPLE OATH MAKES FAROKH EGYPT'S KING

Becomes first ruler of independent Egypt in Modern Times.

Cairo, Egypt.—In striking contrast to the pomp and ceremony which attends the coronation of a European monarch, a simple oath of loyalty to the constitution and nation began and ended the investiture of Farokh in Parliament as the reigning King of Egypt.

The contrast was one which Farokh himself could visualize because he was in London during the coronation of George VI. Unlike that of King George, Farokh's assumption of royal dignities was unaccompanied by any religious ceremony.

The Turkish sultans used to be girt by derivatives with the sword of Osman the conqueror. Other Moslem monarchs have been circumcised to perform this simple rite for themselves. Farokh, however, merely took the oath of Kingship.

King Farokh, though an untitled ruler, is already very popular. There is no crown of Egypt and the

THE ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

It is a far cry from Alberta and the West to the St. Lawrence River, and Westerners may not feel much interest in the St. Lawrence Waterway Project. But that is a wrong attitude. It is a question that concerns all of us. Premier Heppner is said to be opposing the scheme in his forth coming Ontario election, as being unnecessary to the welfare of Ontario, and an added tax on her people.

The following extract from the Christian Science Monitor will give some light on the question.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty signed by the United States and Canada in 1922 provides briefly for the deepening of the St. Lawrence River channel and the building of locks and other navigation facilities to allow large ocean vessels to reach the Great Lakes. Small ocean vessels, though with a draft of not more than 10 feet loaded, but over 200 feet long or 42 feet wide, may now come down the St. Lawrence, through the Welland Canal and into the lakes. Under the treaty, the navigation facilities would be improved so that ocean ships with drafts up to 27 feet, 820 feet long, and 100 feet wide could come in.

A ship could then load grain at Port Arthur and unload it at Liverpool without the transshipment which is now necessary. Of course the same ship could bring back at proportionately low rates, shoes, steel, and, as a matter of fact, grain and produce from other countries. And therein lies the cause of much of the opposition to the plan.

The recent visit of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, with President Roosevelt in Washington, and statements by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (D) of Illinois, that certain forces are seeking to revive the issue, lend reason, opponents feel, for expecting that some effort may be made at this session of Congress to secure ratification of the treaty. Observers in the Chicago Association of Commerce declare they have reason to believe that the matter will be brought up in Washington as soon as the Supreme Court issue is settled.

Those opposed to the plan line up roughly like this. Those who have no direct interest but feel that the United States, paying most of the cost of the project, would fail to get as much benefit as Canada or at least not enough to make it worth while.

The railroads, who of course are not enthusiastic over the added water competition which this route would bring.

Lake ship operators foresee only added competition if large ocean vessels come into the lakes. They point out that while ocean vessels could come into the lakes, the lake boats could go out, for they are designed particularly for lakes navigation and for the carrying of the bulk freight which characterizes lake commerce. These freighters cannot stand the buffets of the open ocean.

HARVESTING SEED OF CRESTED WHEAT GRASS

Crested wheat grass for seed production is grown in rows, usually three feet apart, to give greater leverage for harvesting and insure a better set of seed, particularly under dry conditions. The time of harvesting is most important. If allowed to become too ripe, as much as three-quarters of the best seed can be lost when harvesting. It is usually ready to cut when the heads are well turned but the stems are still green. A good guide is to press a forefinger between the thumb and forefinger. The seed is ready to cut when the kernels buckle rather than break or flatten out in this simple test. The time of cutting is the latter part of July or early August.

Because of shattering when ripe, a combine is unsatisfactory. The grain binder is suitable for harvesting the average row crop of crested wheat grass. A smooth rather than a sickle knife should be used. When the crop is abnormally heavy and bends over, special guards may be used to pick up drooping heads. If the crop is too short to permit tying in small sheaves a special box as used for a short grain crop, will be necessary. Considerable seed can usually be saved by spreading a canvas on the bundle carrier. It is also advisable to have the sheaves lifted off the bundle carrier rather than dumped. Another consideration to avoid excessive shattering is to cut crested wheat grass in the early morning rather than in the hot part of the day.

Stacking of sheaves should be done immediately after binding. Long narrow stacks running north and south are advisable. Eight to ten sheaves makes a convenient size stack. Stocks should be capped in some form of stock cover if not available to prevent loss from rain or hail. The crop should be threshed as soon as possible after curing which takes about ten days of fine warm weather. Too much care cannot be exercised in harvesting crested wheat grass if the grower desires to save all possible seed.

CLEANING POULTRY HOUSES

Lethbridge Experimental Station

This seems an opportune time to present a few thoughts regarding preparing the poultry plant for the production which will soon be coming into the proper time and received the proper care and attention during the summer months. Even a well managed poultry plant requires a thorough cleaning before the young stock comes off the range into the permanent winter quarters and this is more the case if the old birds have had diseases of any kind, as the germs of the various diseases are carried over in the litter and dirt in houses which have not been thoroughly cleaned.

If disease has affected the old birds on the plant the preliminary step in eradicating this is to destroy or sell all the old birds. The young stock is brought in, thereby preventing any young birds from coming in contact with the carriers of the disease. Should it appear undesirable to dispose of all the old birds, care should be taken to keep the young birds away from the older stock and this can best be done by keeping them in separate houses.
